Gasifier crematorium in Perumbakkam all set for inauguration

The new crematorium in Perumbakkam cannot be missed even when blindfolded. It is situated prominently on Semmozhi Salai (also known as Perumbakkam Main Road). The crematorium has a gasifier. Gasifier crematoriums filter carbon and send out only smoke. According to the rule book, a crematorium should cater to people within a 15 km radius. Accordingly, it should serve people from certain sections of Tambaram and OMR regions. The crematorium would be functioning from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. In 12 hours, nine to ten bodies can be cremated. The facility is expected to be opened for the public's use soon. Photos & text: R. Ravindran

Checkpoint ends garbage dumping

KK Salai Cross Street in Akkarai.
PHOTOS: PRINCE FREDERICK

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

On Kalaingar Karunanidhi Salai Cross Street in Akkarai, human habitation is weighted on one side – in fact, concentrated entirely on that side. The other side is marked by a sprawl of vacant land, which is sufficiently boggy to draw water birds, their presence strikingly evident during winter.

Even on the side marked by human activity, houses are more in the making than inhabited. A couple of addresses are “functional”; one of them pertains to a villa enclave. A patch on the vacant side was being used by Urbaser Summet, of course with the blessings of Greater Chennai Corporation, to let garbage cool its grubby feet between collection and disposal. Though the garbage was being swiftly carted away in trucks, fresh garbage would roll in promptly to fill the void. The resultant picture was one of grubbiness.

But that patch was freed of garbage. It ceased to be a garbage transit point.

“After persistent follow-up for a year, the garbage dumping stopped four months ago and the place cleaned up,” says Srikrishnan Venkatachari, a resident of Akkarai.

However, private parties were dumping garbage, particularly construction debris, under the cover of darkness on Kalaingar Karunanidhi Salai Cross Street. Besides, there was disturbing movements of outsiders. Thanks to a police-citizen initiative, the street now has a police booth and checkpoint, one manned by personnel of J8 Neelankarai station. Ever since this measure was clamped in place, clandestine night-time dumping of garbage has stopped. GCC has installed lamp posts on the street. And street also has new bitumen-topped road.

Heritage vehicle clubs show their mettle

Historical Cars Association of India has put up a grand stage in Chennai for illustrious collectors of vintage metal across India to display their precious possessions

Historical Cars Association of India (HCAI) has laid out a grand platform in Chennai for heritage car clubs across India to show their mettle – their precious metal on wheels – in its glittering best.

This is the second event of the same magnitude being held in Chennai by HCAI.

The clubs that make common cause with HCAI by lending their lustre to the event are as follows: Madras Heritage Motoring Club; Vintage and Classic Cars of India, Mumbai; Eastern India Motor group; and Karnataka Vintage and CLASSIC Car Club. Eighty cars and 20 bikes and scooters are being lined up at various events in Chennai and finally beyond, in Puducherry, in this three-day event (February 1-3)

Among vehicles that are likely to have eyeballs rolling over them longer on account of their unique place in the heritage car firmament, wider popularity, immaculate restoration or all of these factors rolled into one, are: MG TD (nicknamed Lal Pari) owned by Daman Thakore. This car has been driven to notice, becoming known around the world for its singular trip around Europe on road.

This MG is known to be unfussy. No temper tantrums and willing to go the extra mile with just a gentle coaxing from a 14 inch spanner. Credit for Lal Pari being always road-ready has to go to its master for keeping an impeccable maintenance record.

This car would be among the other unique cars that will be holding court at Turyaa hotel in Perun-gudi on OMR on February 2, 2025, being there between 9.30 a.m. and 1 p.m. for the public to view them in a show that will be opened by chief guest Arvind Swami, actor and entrepreneur.

Other unique cars on display include Chevrolet Fleetmaster, Rolls Royce Phantom 111 Landaulette, Datsun 240, Hudson, Alfa Romeo, 1979 Corvette C3, Morris Traveller (also called Morris Woody), Buick

8, Sunbeam Talbot, Peugeot 203,, Ford Model A, Volkswagen Bus Beetle Ford Thunderbird and a variety of Jaguars Bikes include Norton, Triumph, a range of Enfield models, BSA and Lambretta.

Two Class VIII students of The School - KFI study the Perumbakkam lake to assess its ecological health

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

During their trips to and from school, two friends – Aadhiran N. A. and Caroline Zita Dias – would observe Asian Opebill storks around a section of Perumbakkam lake. They felt this species was dwindling in these parts. The two Class VIII students of The School KFI have witnessed the rain waters flood the localities around Perumbakkam lake. All these were good enough reasons for the two to take up a project that they presented at the recently concluded Children's Science Congress organised by Tamil Nadu Science Forum and the Institute of Mathematical Sciences.

Under the theme “Water for sustainable management”, they show how ecological degradation is under way at the Perumbakkam lake and the socio-economic implications of this situation.

“During our field visits we collected samples of the water and gave it to a lab and found out it was extremely polluted,” say the two classmates who go on wetland tours.

To understand the socio-economic challenges, the two had the task of convincing families residing in the Perumbakkam settlement to talk about the struggles they face including the health-related concerns due to poor sanitation.

Startled by the observations in their study, the two wrote a letter to the Chengalpattu Collector S.Arunraj suggesting that steps be taken to conserve the waterbody. This also includes taking action on illegal encroachments around the lake and penalising those not following Solid Waste Management Rules.

“We were also asked to send the project to the Tamil Nadu Urban Habitat Development Board that oversees the settlement,” says Aadhiran.

“We plan to present their findings to the member of parliament. We are a 14-member group in Class VIII called Blue Brigade and we will be creating awareness through art at the Perumbakkam housing board,” says Caroline, adding that social media is another tool they will harness for the lake to get justice.

A nesting Black kite

Grace has various facets to it, unhurried ease being among them. On the 22 yards, David Gower epitomised it, bringing a silken smoothness to strokeplay, even to slog-over pummeling. In the skies, the Black kite represents grace with its fluid glides, effortless change of direction. At the Marina, the Black kite flaunts its flying abilities. Even the crows that heckle them are impelled to do an impression of the Black kite's flowing flight. Watch closely, you would catch a few members of Corvus splendens attempting glides, revealing an unconscious admiration for the Black kite's flying skills.

When anyone has a hearth to defend, little ones to take care of, they can act out of character if the situation demands it. They would embrace effrontery, abandoning grace, if that would keep their homestead chirping peacefully. On Perumbakkam Main Road, around two pylons by the side of a canal that begins a journey to Okkiyam maduvu, Black kites occasionally speed up their flight. They have nests to defend. These are Black kites whose calling cards indicate locations in Chennai unlike a vast section of Black kites that head to Chennai from western India escaping the South West monsoon, and return home when that monsoon is past. These resident black kites build nests and raise their young in Chennai. The images show a Black kite carrying what looks like a small stone to its nest on a pylon on Perumbakkam Main Road. Raptors are known to build nests that are rugged — to put it mildly — building them with material that hardly mesh with the notion of cushioning. In characteristic style, this Black kite nest has rusty metal wires and a range of other hard objects. This Black kite was doing hurried sorties around the pylon holding its nest before settling in adding the new piece — likely a stone — to the nest bed and then sitting squat on the nest, probably incubating eggs.

Float festival in Mylapore ends today

Procession of the utsavar deities of Sri Adhi Kesava Perumal, Andal and Peyazhwar were taken in the four Madaveethis of Sri Adhi Kesava Perumal Peyazhwar Devasthanam temple and were kept in the float car decorated by lights and flowers at the Chitrakulam. The trees and walls around Chitrakulam were decorated with lights and resultant look was delectable. Theppotsavam festival is held for five days, from January 29 to February 2.

On all these five days, the procession would start by 6.30 pm and reach the float by 8 pm. The float does three rounds around Chitrakulam and the deity is taken again in a procession to the sanctum sanctorum of the temple.
